

FIGHT AIDS MONACO

Many people who live with HIV fight this virus alone. They suffer from isolation, lack of confidence and, too often still, from discrimination. A large portion of these people seclude themselves from any social life or are excluded by their own social circles.

This is what H.S.H. Princess Stephanie is fighting against with her association Fight Aids Monaco, since 2004.

H.S.H. Princess Stephanie of Monaco and the Board Members are engaged in fighting these issues. With solidarity in mind, and to support its various needs, the association works in Monaco with public and private institutions to organize prevention programmes as well as fundraising. Partnerships with French and African associations contribute to widen the range of actions we offer.

She also created in 2010, a unique concept in Europe, "La Maison de Vie". This non-medicalized establishment offers those living with HIV, individual accommodation from 1 to 2 weeks to allow them to rest, have time for themselves, have a break, catch their breath despite the difficulties of living with the virus and to build up or regain their self-confidence.
